my greatest legacy.

Introduction

There was a time when I believed my best days of ministry were over.

There Is Hope!

I wondered if there would ever be a role where I could make my best contribution for the kingdom using my talents and passions. I felt stuck and discouraged, yet I sensed that God did have something better. So, I began a journey to discover how a person could determine what their best area of contribution could be. After several years of research and training, this material came about.

If this is you, please realize that your feelings are normal and there is hope for a better future. I believe as you work through this material, you will gain crucial insight regarding where you can make your own best contribution for the kingdom.

Career stewardship is being a wise manager of what God has given you. By knowing your God-given design and desires you will be in a much greater position to make your best contribution for the kingdom.

You may be in a good fit, and this material can help you identify more clearly the areas you need to make even stronger and more focused.

The Bible says in Ephesians 2:10, “For we are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus for good works which God prepared beforehand that should walk in them”. I believe you have been made by God with unique gifts and talents to impact the world.

There is help

There is no silver bullet or simple way to do career planning. The key is to take time to get into the process. Cru staff member Wendell Lillstrand, who has done career coaching for over 3,000 Cru staff, said, “In each person reside the insights and dreams to their career”. By working through this material you will be able to identify the way that God has wired you and the dreams He has placed in you.

The process involves working through each section to discover your God-given design and desires. The next step is to combine or summarize them into your Best Contribution Area (see diagram on the following page). It would be wise to get away from the normal distractions in order to think and contemplate your answers. My hope is this process will renew your vision for seeing God use you that honors him and brings life and hope to you.

Note to Cru Staff – Please work in partnership with your LDHR or People & Culture representative as you work through this process.

“You weren’t an accident. You weren’t mass produced. You were deliberately planned, specifically gifted, and lovingly positioned on the earth by the Master Craftsman.”

– Max Lucado

Career Stewardship

“You made all the delicate, inner parts of my body and knit them together in my mother’s womb.

Thank you for making me so wonderfully complex!

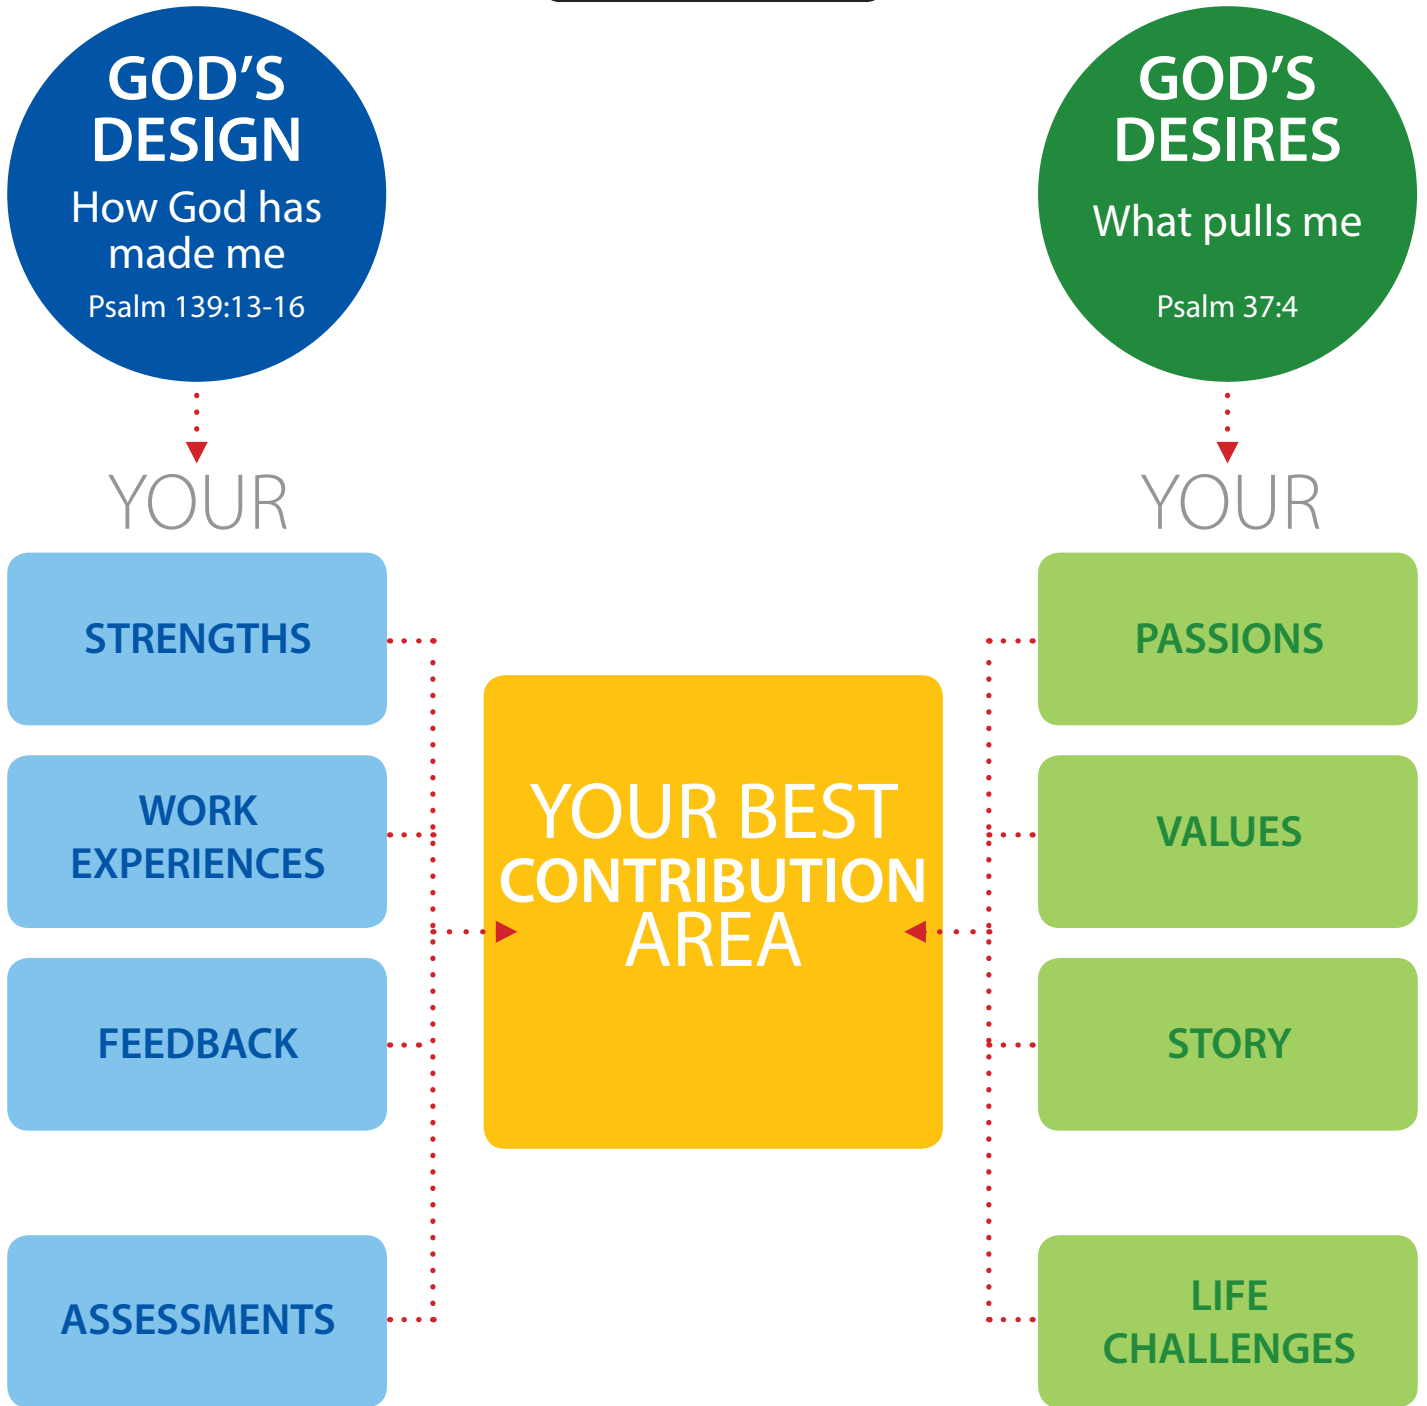

It is amazing to think about. Your workmanship is marvelous—how well I know it. You were there while I was being formed in utter seclusion!

You saw me before I was born and scheduled each day of my life before I began to breathe.”

The Process

This diagram shows the key components that will help you discover and clarify your God-given design and your God-given desires. Your design is “how God has made you” and your desires are the motivations which pull you. Design reveals what your transferable skills are. Desire reflects where your heart is. Like a “resume”, the combination of these will make up your best contribution area.

Scripture related to stewardship: Psalm 139:13-16, Romans 12:3-8, I Peter: 4:10-11, I Corinthians 12:12-18, Ephesians 2:10, Matthew 25:14-28, I Corinthians 10:31.

God-Given Design

Your God-given design is all about how God has made you. Romans 12:3 tells us to have a sound estimation of ourselves. You have been uniquely created by God to do his will and work here on earth (Psalm 139, Ephesians 2:10). Determining this can be done by looking at your strengths, experiences, feedback from people who know you, as well as through objective assessment.

- Abilities
- Good at doing
- Areas of confidence
- Bent
- Giftedness
- Transferable skills

Components to understanding your God-given design

Strengths

- What are you good at?
- What activities give your energy & life?
- Where do you feel confident?

Work Experiences

- What roles have you loved and excelled in?
- Why did you love doing them?

Feedback

- What do people who know you well say are your strengths?

Assessments

- StrengthsFinder, Myers Briggs, Birkman
- How do they help you know yourself better?
- Are there patterns & similarities?

Strengths

Your strengths are how you make successful contributions in the world. Knowing what your strengths are is vital in determining your best role or job fit. Strengths are best identified through activities or results. They are revealed when these three factors are in place: you do the activity well on a consistent basis; you enjoy doing it, i.e., when you are doing it you feel energized and strong; and finally, others recognize your strength, especially people other than family and friends. You may describe these by saying “I love to...” or “I feel strong when I...”.

“Don’t ask what the world needs. Ask what makes you come alive, and go do it. Because what the world needs is people who have come alive.”

– Howard Thurman

Conversely, activities where you struggle, don’t enjoy yourself and receive little affirmation can reveal areas that are not strengths.

When you’re using your strengths you will have a pull or attraction to want to do the activity and feel a sense of satisfaction after using them. Also, you should see that you learn more rapidly when you’re using your strengths in other areas. When you’re not using your strengths you will become more defensive about your performance, it will take more time to learn and you will feel weak and drained during and after you do them.

In the box, write down activities that you would use to describe your strengths. If needed, please use the list provided of one word descriptions of strengths. Enter the strengths in the box to the right.

Describing your strengths here is different from your five talents from the StrengthsFinder assessment. In this section, just list in your own words or use the words provided, to describe areas of strength. The StrengthsFinder assessment, along with other assessments, will be discussed later.

Experiences

By looking at your past experiences you can identify abilities that have prepared you to help individuals, groups or organizations. In Matthew 25, Jesus said, “Let your light shine before men so they may see your good works and glorify your Father who is in heaven.” How you let your light shine before people is one way to show God’s gifting through you. Your experiences reveal how God has used you to shine His light in the past and will reveal road signs that point to the future.

To do this, make an autobiographical montage of enjoyable activities and accomplishments from your life. Here are the ground rules:

Starting as far back as you can remember, jot down brief, one-line descriptions of things you accomplished that were energizing, satisfying and enjoyable to you. They should show you in action accomplishing something. Then, for each accomplishment, describe what you were doing that made you feel competent and gave you a sense of reward in doing it. They need to be activities you really enjoyed that gave you a sense of personal accomplishment. You can list jobs, interests, hobbies, home responsibilities, or school events. You can also look at periods of life - elementary school, middle school, high school, college.

List at least 4 stories, because the more you write down the more likely you are to see a pattern of certain abilities you are motivated to do and that you are competent in doing. For example, the experiences I listed were playing high school football, being Key club president and coaching flag football.

Example:

Story I was elected president of the Key club

Era of life High school

I got started because I was involved for two years and served in various roles. I had to plan meetings, get people to coordinate events and report to our advisor. I enjoyed being in charge and working with other students. I enjoyed the recognition I received from other students and the teachers in my school. I liked that I could have a greater impact in my school being the president.

Abilities identified: Organizing and Influencing people

Once you complete your stories, look for a pattern of your abilities, or themes, in your life and list them under the “Abilities (from experiences)” box at the top of the next page.

Assessments

Assessments give objective feedback about a person's life. Depending on the assessment tool used, most describe how a person lives and the environments where they function best, as well as environments where they may struggle. The main take away from any assessment is to own the results and add them to your understanding of how God has designed you. Assessments should confirm what you have learned from the previous steps, in this book. Getting feedback from a consultant who is trained in the assessment tool usually adds understanding and aids in the application of the information.

Here is a list of the more common assessments Cru uses:

StrengthsFinder – The StrengthsFinder assessment is a personal development tool designed by the Gallup organization. It's easy to take and understand. It will describe a person's top five talents from a list of 34 potential talents. Your talents, when combined with experience, education and training is the foundation for your strengths. The diagram below helps you see that StrengthsFinder talents fall into four groups. The more talents you have in a quadrant, the greater capacity you have in that particular category. Most people have talents in multiple quadrants and your mix of talents will be unique to you. You can take this online assessment at gallup.com.

Feedback

Feedback is getting input from people who have experienced you in some role, especially in your work world. It could be team members you have led, worked with on projects, or past co-workers. The more they have experienced you in the better. Ask at least two people to describe what you are good at doing, or what they would say your strengths are. Once you get their results, highlight aspects that you think are most accurate. There is a blank "Feedback" document in the back of this material which can be copied and given to people to help get their input.

List the results you received from others in the box below.

Myers Briggs Type Inventory (MBTI)

The Myers-Briggs is a well-known assessment and fairly easy to understand. To get the most out of the Myers-Briggs, describe how each letter from your results look in your life. A good website to learn more about your Myers-Briggs is truity.com.

Birkman – The Birkman is a thorough assessment that reveals multiple insights. The Areas of Interest section can be very helpful as it reveals your top interest. Interests above 90% are significant because they indicate a strong pull toward this area. The Career Management section shows job families you would have an affinity toward based on your results. The Birkman assessment, more than the others, will be better understood with a trained Birkman consultant.

Spiritual gifts – Knowing your spiritual gifts can confirm what you have already discovered and provide direction for serving in your local church. Many churches and seminaries can administer a spiritual gifts assessment. Your spiritual gifts should be similar to your natural gifts and abilities. For a free spiritual gifts' assessment, go to gifttest.com.

From these and other assessments you've taken, highlight what you believe are especially accurate descriptions of you. As you look at multiple assessments, you may see a pattern of similar characteristics that will help you accept and clarify how you have been designed.

Design Summary

After completing the previous steps, to the best of your ability, summarize how God has made you. Write down key words that describe you based on the information you have gathered.

You may see a pattern of similar gifts and abilities from each of these categories. Once you make your summary, you will then want to accept this as how God has made you!

Example:

I am a person who enjoys and is comfortable with meeting new people. I am able to relate to them in a way that enables me to bring encouragement and hope that their experience is normal. I'm good at leading and organizing meetings. I work in an orderly manner which enables me to usually cover all my bases. I love to give words of encouragement that the future is bright, and help people identify resources that will help them in practical ways.

Summary statement:

God-given Design

*There is no place on the profile sheet to list this summary statement. You will use this statement along with your desires summary statement to form your "Best Contribution" summary statement.

God Given Desires

Your desires reflect your heart. Your heart is where your deepest dreams and passions come from. In Proverbs 4:23 it says “Guard your heart, for from it come the issues of life”. Psalm 37:4 says “Delight yourself in the Lord and He will give you the desires of your heart” (also see Psalm 139:23 and Colossians 3:23). It’s possible to work for years and not contemplate what is in your heart. To “re-up” or renew where your heart and desires are is to be a good steward of your life. By clarifying your passions, values, and your story, you will gain insight into where your greatest contribution for God’s kingdom lies.

Components to understanding your God-given desires

Passion

What do you care about?
What do you think needs changing?

Values

What’s important to you?

Story

What are your successes and failures (pain)?
What’s been the greatest influence?
What life experiences have prepared you?

Life Challenges

Roadblocks & life issues
Areas to now embrace

By gaining insight into your passions, values and your story you will gain insight into where you can make your best contribution for God's kingdom.

Passions

Passion isn't necessarily wild and crazy feelings, but what you think about, what you feel strong about.

Life can be more exciting and adventurous when we know what our passions are. People who lack passion are more often bored, unengaged and feel their best days are past. I believe when we know our passions and move toward them, you will have more energy, creativity and contentment.

What are you passionate about?

What do you think about that you feel needs to be changed? What would you like to influence or help?

If you could do anything, had the resources and total freedom, what would you do?

After you have answered these questions, review the following passion inventory to clarify what your passions might be.

Passions Inventory

Here are a few categories of passions that may help you with classifying yours.

- ___ Designing/Developing – I love to make something out of nothing. I enjoy getting something started from scratch.
- ___ Pioneering – I love to test and try out new concepts – I am not afraid to risk failure.
- ___ Organizing – I love to bring order out of chaos – I enjoy organizing something.
- ___ Operate/Maintaining – I love to efficiently maintain something that is already organized.
- ___ Serving/Helping – I love to assist others in their responsibility – I enjoy helping others succeed.
- ___ Acquiring/Possessing – I love to shop, collect, or obtain things – I enjoy getting the highest quality for the best price.
- ___ Excelling – I love being the best and making my team the best – Setting and attaining the highest standard.
- ___ Influencing – I love to convert people to my way of thinking – I enjoy shaping the attitudes and behavior of others.
- ___ Performing – I love to be on stage and receive the attention of others – I enjoy being in the limelight.

___ Improving – I love to make things better – I enjoy taking something that someone else has designed and improving it.

___ Leading/be in charge – I love to lead the way, oversee and supervise – I enjoy determining how things will be done.

___ Persevering – I love to see things through to completion – I enjoy persisting at something until it is finished.

___ Meeting the Challenge – I love to rise to the occasion, beat the competition, endure till the end, get on top, confirm, succeed.

___ Gaining Response/ Influencing behavior – I love to have clients, audiences, and co-workers react to my influence or activity.

___ Making the team/Making the grade – I love to gain access to the varsity, professional group, elite classification, honors group, fraternal order, places reserved for and open to those who achieve.

___ Meeting needs/Fulfilling requirements – I love to meet specifications, schedules, follow procedures, and give customers what they want, meet boss's needs and expectations.

___ Making work/Making effective – I love to fix what is broken, change what is out of date, and redesign what is poorly conceived.

___ Extracting/Achieving potential – I seek giant talents, promising markets, and hot products yet undiscovered, untapped or not fully utilized.

___ Becoming proficient / Demonstrating competency – I love learn a new skill, perform a difficult piece, broaden interests, demonstrate a variety of abilities.

___ Bringing to completion / Reaching the objective – I want to move unhindered toward results, push through till completion, see different ideas or efforts completed, and enjoy fruits of the labor.

Values Inventory

Your values are important to know because they identify what is important to you. When your values are missing from your life you will be less productive and less motivated. Most people acknowledge similar foundational values such as faith, God, family, marriage, and children, as well as some basic needs as belonging and significance. Personal values drive behavior and contribute to a sense of satisfaction and fulfillment. Values set you apart from others.

A value is a principle, standard or quality considered worthwhile or desirable.

Review the following values list. Select your highest values by writing an “H” and your lowest values by writing an “L”. From those selected pick the five highest as your high category and the five lowest as the low category. The highest values would be ones that you always value and the lowest would be that you seldom value. Although you will have a list of your five highest and five lowest values, you will only place your top values on the summary profile sheet.

_____ People Contact – having a lot of day-to-day interaction with people.

_____ Time freedom – having responsibilities that I can pursue according to my own schedule.

_____ Influence People – changing attitudes or modifying opinions that impact actions.

_____ Structure – a framework that provides boundaries and organization.

_____ Mental stimulation – doing work which requires that I constantly use my mind and continue to develop my intellect.

_____ Solitude – time for reflection.

_____ Work alone – doing projects by myself, without any significant amount of contact with others.

_____ Leisure – having enough time for personal interests and pursuits.

_____ Pressure – where time pressure is prevalent and productive.

_____ Working with others – having close working relationships with a group- working as a team toward goals.

_____ Decision-making – having the power to decide courses of action, policies, etc.

_____ Exercising competence – the opportunity to work in those areas in which I feel I have talents and the ability to excel.

_____ Helping others – providing services, assistance or support to others in a direct or behind the scenes way, either individually or in small groups.

_____ Friendships – developing close personal relationships with people as a result of where I live, work and play.

_____ Knowledge – spending time in pursuit of knowledge, truth and understanding.

_____ Fast pace – living life rapidly with a lot of activity.

_____ Stability – having a life of routine that is predictable and unchanging.

_____ Safety – being safe from danger, fear, or the unknown.

_____ Competition – engaging in activities that pit my abilities against others and myself.

_____ Financial freedom – possessing the means that allow me to experience those things I consider essential and the luxuries of life.

_____ Location – living in a geographical area, which suits my lifestyle.

_____ Challenging opportunities – having opportunities to stretch myself with new, unique, or difficult situations.

_____ Responsibility – having the chance to oversee projects and/or personnel.

_____ Power and authority – having the ability to influence activities and rewards of others.

_____ Leadership – having the opportunity to direct, influence and motivate others.

_____ Adventure – experiencing a high degree of excitement in the course of my life.

_____ Job security – being assured of keeping my job and enjoying a reasonable financial reward.

_____ Work on the frontiers of knowledge – working in one of the physical sciences, human research or working in a company that is technically excellent and striving to produce advances.

_____ Precision work – involvement in situations that requires a high level of accuracy.

_____ Peace and harmony – having freedom from conflict.

_____ Status – having a position that others respect and value.

_____ Independence – determining the nature of what I do; setting my own direction.

_____ Affiliation – being a part of a company, organization, or a team that accepts me as a team member.

_____ Problem solving – being motivated by bringing resolution to difficult issues or situations.

_____ Artistic expression – engaging in creative work with aesthetic value.

_____ Health and fitness – having an active lifestyle that allows time to maintain good exercise and discipline in diet.

_____ Recognition – receiving rewards or public acknowledgement for the quality of my contribution.

_____ Creativity – being able to innovate, invent, and imagine new things or ideas resulting in originality.

_____ Change and variety – having responsibilities and activities that frequently change in their content and or setting.

_____ Aesthetics – studying or appreciating the beauty of things, ideas, etc.

Story

Your story is about your life experiences. Experiences are valuable because they tell you where you have been and how your experiences have affected you. The list could include family, spiritual, sports, ministry, and education experiences. It is important to include experiences that are both hurtful and celebrated.

Stories reveal how you've walked through both success and failure and may reveal how God has prepared you for the next opportunity. Sometimes a life message can come from your story. A life message is how God has worked in and through your experiences that you want to share with others. Your life message can also impact your choice of a job or career.

List experiences from your life that have impacted who you are today:

Story (impactful experiences)

Desires Summary

Now summarize your passions, values, and story into a statement. Combine key words that you believe describe what you are passionate about and value, and any impactful experiences you've had. This summary should capture the desires and motivations of your heart.

God-given Desires

There is no place on the worksheet to list this summary statement. You will use this statement along with your God-given design summary to form your "Best Contribution" summary statement.

Life Challenges

Life challenges are current influences that will impact your next role or job. Life issues may be roadblocks to moving forward in life or the realities that God has given you at this time. It is vital to embrace them and see that God will use them for our good and His glory. So, it is important to address what they are and what impact they will have on your decision-making process.

For example, it could be that you have fears about the future and, as a result, you feel immobilized. You may have a child with special needs that only certain doctors or hospitals have the facilities to help. Obviously, this would influence your next role. Also consider your marital/family status and how that is affecting you. Other potential areas are financial and aging parents' challenges.

Life challenges need to be identified and addressed before you can move on. This is especially important as you consider your next responsibility.

Best Contribution Area

Your best contribution area involves using your transferable skills where your heart is. Using the information you have gathered, take your best shot at describing what your best contribution would look like. Use the summary statements of your God-given design and God-given desires to create this.

Remember, you are trying to combine the key parts. There is no perfect or ideal role; however, the better you know what your best contribution area would look like, the better able you are to select a job that has the components that contribute to a good fit for you.

This summary statement should be emotionally satisfying when you read it.

What are the areas you match well and the areas of mismatch in your current role?

If you were doing the things in your best contribution area, how do you think you would feel?

How can this be helpful in future roles?

Going Forward

5 E's of Career Stewardship

The 5 E's of Stewardship will help you move forward with next steps to grow in your current role or to help you develop a plan to find a different role.

In light of your best contribution summary the following list will provide a context to brainstorm ideas to help you steward your growth and development. Application can be made for current roles and future desired roles.

	Ideas	When & How?
Education What do I need to learn? What books or websites can help me? How much education do I need? Who can I talk to? What do I need to find out? Are there any seminars or conferences I can attend? Is there anyone else doing something similar to what I want to do?
Exposure Who can I watch? Who can I follow? Who can I observe?
Experience Where can I try doing this? Where can I practice doing this? Is there a way to start slow? Where can I do this more? Can I do this through my church or in some other organizations?
Environment Where is an environment that would encourage my growth? What are the groups or clubs I can be a part of?
Evaluation Where do I need feedback to improve? What assessments have I taken that I may need to review in light of this information? What assessments may help me gain insight into these areas? Are there other feedback tools I could use?

Job Fit

There is no perfect job; however, the more you know about what you bring to a role, the more likely you will be able to determine a good match. It is your responsibility to know if the job is a good fit by learning as much as possible about the requirements and expectations are for the role. Generally, a 60% job fit is a good fit. There will always be aspects in a role that you can do but would prefer not to do and aspects you are good at but are missing from the job. Sometimes making a proposal to adjust your current role can be enough to continue in the role. Taking some responsibilities away or adding some may be a win for both you and your leader. If you are doing a good job and your director wants you to stay, it's more likely some type of accommodation could work out. It is very important to have humility and an attitude of open hands.

Re-entry Moms

Returning to a part-time or full-time role is one of the most challenging transitions. It's hard to jump back into an office work role after years of giving primary attention to your children and family's needs. Not knowing how things work, especially in an office where you're unfamiliar with technology can make it hard to feel confident making a transition. Also, having not used some of your skills and abilities for years can lead to insecurity. Every situation is different, but here are some suggestions.

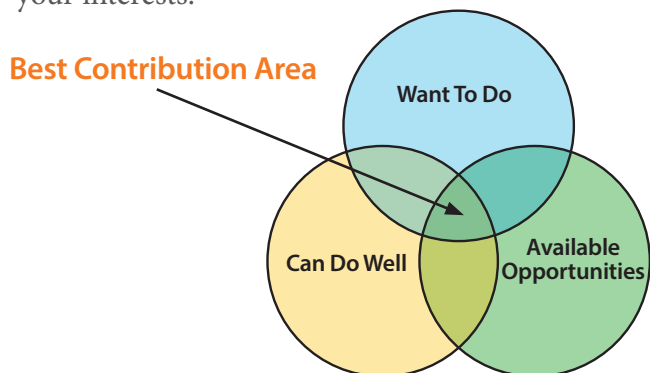

First, know who you are and what you want to do as much as possible. Working through this material is a key step. You will be able to clarify what you bring to a role and it will also be affirming to be able to describe it. I'd encourage you to go slow and not seek to hit a home run at first. It usually takes time to acclimate to the various office cultures.

Once you are in the door, be a learner and observe what the needs and opportunities are in the workplace. Imagine stairs where you take small steps that move you closer to the role that fits you best. It's wise to talk with a friend or person you respect who has made a good transition and learn what was helpful for them. In general, the best way to find a role is through people you know and who know you.

Opportunities

Your best contribution can be applied where available opportunities exist. By knowing your best contribution area, you'll be in a better position to evaluate what the available opportunities are.

Job fit and needs of organization - There will always be tension between being in a job that is a better fit and filling a role that is needed by the ministry or organization. Wendell Lillestrand suggest that a person do a variety of jobs up through 30 years of age. This is because people in their twenties are still learning what their gifting and interests are. After that, a person should seek to find roles that fit their gifting and interests. This takes prayer and a mature hands-open attitude. Longevity in ministry, or any role, is increased when using your gifts in the area of your interests.

Opportunities

Once you have an idea of what your ideal role or job is, then you're better able to say yes or no to the opportunities that are before you.

DECISION MAKING GRID
JOB OPPORTUNITIES
	Option #1	Option #2	Option #3	Option #4	Option #5
C R I T E R I A	Vision For It
	Fit
	Location
	Medical Facilities
	Schools
	Training
	Score Totals

Score each criteria for the job option 0-3, 0 being low and 3 being high – then add the scores for opportunity

List the options or job opportunities that you have for your future role:

- |    |    |
|----|----|
| 1. | 4. |
| 2. | 5. |
| 3. |    |

Before you can pick which one is best, you will need to develop some criteria for what you want in the next role or job you take. Criteria would include what you believe is important. You may also add life challenges that must be considered.

Criteria:

- |    |    |
|----|----|
| 1. | 4. |
| 2. | 5. |
| 3. |    |

Examples are job fit, type of ministry, location of country, distance to family, schools, seminary opportunity, medical needs, opportunities to speak, opportunities to do training, opportunities to travel, pay, etc. List your criteria as well as give each of them a priority rating. Examples: non-negotiable, negotiable, desirable, or High, Low, Medium.

Next, review all of the job opportunities as to how well they will satisfy the various criteria. Hopefully this will allow you to quantify your job opportunities with objective criteria.

Ultimately, you will surrender your options to the Lord and ask Him to guide you. You have done the preparation to be a good steward, now He can lead you in a level path.

Transition

Transition in a job or role usually occurs when a job or strategy is no longer needed, leaving you in need of a new role. Transition is the “in-between” time of what you did in the past and what you will do in the future. Transition is harder emotionally when it is unexpected and unwanted. It is less difficult and often welcome when it alleviates a difficult job situation. Usually it can feel chaotic and confusing. The bottom line is that you will need to embrace several phases to make a good transition.

Transition can also be a time of significant growth in a person’s life. It’s a great time to renew what God wants you to become and what to do with your life.

Taking time to contemplate is vital to hear from God on these areas. Transition can feel chaotic because people often get much of their identity from their job, and to not have a job can cause fear and anxiety.

Two important questions to ask during a time of transition are “Who am I?” and “What do I want?” “Who am I?” is the truth from scripture of our identity, but also what God has given me as far as strengths and passions. “What do I want?” is to renew your vision for where God can use you in your next role. By working through the material and having your “Best Contribution Summary,” you’ll have a “north star” to direct you toward your next role.

Transition can happen by choice or due to outside circumstances – i.e., changes in ministry direction, leadership change, or the result of poor job fit or performance.

Additional Considerations

The term “faithful, available and teachable” is a great rallying cry that demonstrates a willingness to serve wherever the needs are. However, longevity in ministry will require taking responsibility for knowing what God has given you in order to continue serving effectively. Over time, burnout and bitterness can occur when serving in a role that is a poor fit.

Taking responsibility also involves knowing when to step down from a role and having a plan for continued service. People think the role they are in is all they can do. However, by knowing you’re your best contribution area, you will be able to see multiple areas you can use your transferable skills.

Finishing well in ministry is a way to adjust so you can contribute to the end and others can step up to continue the impact you have started. As we age our ability to “do ministry” will diminish contingent on health, age and family needs.

David English’s “Phases of Life” materials help people understand the emotional and spiritual challenges they face during the different phases of their lives. His material, and having a group of peers to process life, will give you encouragement and strength as you age. Go to DavidAEnglish.com for more information.

Resources

Websites

Christian Career Center – Good for general information with a Christian perspective. Has a questionnaire for determining career satisfaction. <http://www.christiancareercenter>

Purpose Driven Life – This is Rick Warren's Purpose Driven Life website. The link called S.H.A.P.E. is a good model for looking at your life in a comprehensive manner. <http://www.purposedriven.com/en-US/SHAPE/welcome.htmr.com/>

Truity.com – A great website that explains and illustrates the Myers Briggs Type Inventory.

Giftstest.com – Sponsored by lifechurch.com – it's a good online spiritual gifts assessment, it's free too.

DavidAEnglish.com – David helps people understand the spiritual and emotional impact your phase of life has and how intimacy with Christ and others is vital to a life well lived.

Job Hunters Bible – From the book "What Color is your Parachute". Has lots of good articles and information on career development. <http://www.jobhuntersbible.com/counseling/ctests.shtml>

Books

The Person Called You – Bill Hendricks - A recent book and one of the best I've read on career and life stewardship. Bill is the son of the late Howard Hendricks from Dallas Theology Seminary. The website is thegiftednesscenter.com

Designing Your Life – Bill Burnett and Dave Evans, – Not a Christian oriented book, but respectful and offers a great process to move toward jobs and a life that honors how God has made you. The website is designingyour.life.

Life Keys – Kise, Stark, & Hirsh. Bethany House publishers - Combines several assessments - Myers Briggs, Holland's code, Values inventory, Spiritual gifts, to help you develop a purpose statement. Good for practical application and having a visual of your own profile.

Your One Degree – Dave Jewitt – Dave does coaching in Tulsa, OK, helping people live focused on the small percent of life that is your best contribution. The website is youronedegree.com.

What Color is your Parachute – Richard Nelson Bolles. Ten Speed Press – Considered the bible of career development – thorough, lots of information on job hunting and general career development. The author is a Christian and does incorporate this into the book, but it isn't a "Christian" book.

Halftime – Bob Buford, Zondervan – Great on life & career planning for mid career or older. Christian oriented.

Transitions – William Bridges, Da Capo – Not a Christian oriented book. Helpful regarding job change and dealing with transition.

Strengthsfinder 2.0 – Primarily used to obtain the pass code to take the Strengthfinder assessment – good for background information on the Strengthfinder and definitions of the various talents.

Assessments

Birkman -The Birkman Method measures productive behaviors, stress behaviors, underlying needs, motivations and organizational orientation. Good for individual and team development. Cost- depends on consulting expenses – $85.00 - $100.00 (through in house Cru trained consultants).

Strengthsfinder – Developed by Gallup – this online assessment identifies and describes your top 5 talents of a possible thirty-four. These talents together can be used to understand your areas of strengths. Good for individual and team development. With Core Clarity feedback & consulting $40-60 (through in house trained Cru consultants). $20 online at gallup.com.

Myers Briggs Type Inventory – (MBTI) – Measures preferences in how people perceive the world and make decisions. Good for individual and teams. $10-$30 – depends on purchasing of book and if part of a team assessment.

Emotional Quotient Inventory – (Eqi) – measures emotional intelligence related to self – awareness, self expression, social awareness, emotional management, change management and self motivation. Charge for in house trained Cru staff @ $50.

Self Directed Search – (SDS) – good for determining career direction by giving a 3 letter code developed by John Holland that tells the relationship between job personalities, key characteristics, college majors, hobbies, abilities, and career. Cost may vary -$10

Things To Consider

Get objective feedback – with some exceptions a good assessment can give valuable information to help you better employ yourself and a benchmark for developing yourself.

Know your objective - The first step in selecting an assessment is to determine what you want it to produce for you? What do you want it to help you know or understand?

Own the results – owning the results and having practical steps to use the information in your work and life.

Some of these will require a trained consultant to administrate the assessment, while others you can do own your own. However, receiving feedback from a person trained in using the assessment will add more understanding and application.

Career Stewardship

There is no magic bullet...

It's you – taking the time to process your career plans...

To identify the ways God has wired you for His glory and your benefit...

If necessary to get unstuck...

To make your best contribution for His kingdom...

Inside is a simple process to help you identify and renew your dream and vision for your life...
... with vision comes inspiration and next steps become clear ...

Like any tool this workbook is only effective when it is put to use... I pray God will inspire, encourage and engage you in this process.

"...I came that they may have life, and have it abundantly."

John 10:10 NAS

Then Jesus came to them and said, "All authority in heaven and on earth has been given to me. Therefore go and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit, and teaching them to obey everything I have commanded you. And surely I am with you always, to the very end of the age."

Matthew 28:18-20 NIV
